

SARKI

The different members of Newcastle covers band Sarki have come from party pop and hard rock backgrounds to combine these styles into a unique mix of songs.

Sarki is the brainchild of Scott Allen (ex Floating Heads) on drums and vocals, and Shane Kurnia (ex Spilt Milk) on guitar and vocals. They then enlisted the talents of Mathew Munro on lead vocals and percussion, and Dom Willson (both ex Men Without Shame) on bass guitar and vocals.

The band rehearsed for around eight months during 2009, then towards the end of the year played several gigs in Newcastle and the Hunter Valley, including private functions, birthday parties, pub gigs, and a huge New Year's Eve show at the Beaches Hotel, Merewether.

Sarki's repertoire includes songs from traditional favourites such as Bryan Adams, Hoodoo Gurus and INXS, through to current hits by acts such as Kings of Leon, White Stripes, Jet and Franz Ferdinand just to name a few.

The band keeps it fresh by continually introducing new songs which are carefully selected for their broad appeal - whether you like dancing, singing along, or just kicking back and appreciating great music!
